1. Visitors, Public Comments, Changes to the agenda
2. Green Mountain Beach
 - Groups up to 150 are now allowed. It may be worth trying. There would still be no picnic tables, but do we bring in the porta-potty? We would put out buoys but not the raft. We have ordered some signage and would have these put up around the entrance. If there is a health issue, we would close it again. John Redd suggested keeping the “no parking” signs along the road, and possibly extended further down. Meg Streeter thinks the overcrowding will resolve itself with the limited parking. Nicki feels the raft is used for kids to jump off, not for congregating and should be put out. John Redd thinks that looking into having someone monitor the beach because it can get crowded on hot days. Gannon moved to open Green Mountain Beach, Fisher second; all in favor.

3. Other Business
